William's Story

Names and a few identifying details have been changed to protect our client's privacy. Every case is different.

William was driving home from his part-time job as a delivery driver when he was struck by a car that failed to stop at a red light. The impact destroyed William's car and left him with immediate, excruciating pain and nausea, causing him to vomit as soon as he exited the vehicle. He visited a walk-in clinic that advised him to attend the emergency room and his family doctor.

William's Traumatic Injuries

Following his accident, William was diagnosed with a concussion, migraines, dizziness, whiplash and sleep difficulties. He also suffers from PTSD and major depressive disorder. William attempted to return to work following his accident but was not successful. His treatments have only provided marginal relief, and pain continues to affect every aspect of his life.

How our firm helped William

We helped William and his family receive income replacement based on his inability to work and compensation for his pain and suffering. We also helped him secure funding for housekeeping, physiotherapy, psychologists and specialist visits. Under the Family Law Act, we helped Oliver's wife receive compensation based on her loss of companionship, support, and increased responsibilities following her husband's accident.

William's Lawsuit

Our firm started an accident benefits claim against the insurance company and a lawsuit against the driver who hit William. The liability was clearly on the driver who hit him. Our team worked hard to calculate his expected loss of wages, future care costs, and non-economic losses, such as pain and suffering. The case was settled at mediation, as all parties could agree on a fair amount of money. William was happy to receive both an accident benefits claim and a lawsuit settlement. Because he trusted in our firm, William received compensation based on his pain and suffering and no longer needs to worry about paying injury-related bills.
